PAGE

A Gleam of Exquisite Tenderness Lit Up Colonel Darrell's Usually Stern Face, as He Knelt Down Beside Her ... 516

A Terrible Disappointment... 276

A Fruitless Appeal ... 397

"And so Gilbert, My Boy, It's Your Fault—I'm Surprised at That" ... 505

"Angry? Is That All a Woman Threatened as I Have Been Would Feel?" ... 517

Appealing To A Heart of Stone... 84

Arline Saw a Spectacle That Haunted Her For Many a Long Day Afterwards ... 36

At That Instant Her Eyes Fell on a White Figure Slowly Advancing With a Noiseless Movement ... 12

Bargain, A Capital ... 289

"Beatrice," He Said, "Do Not Jest To-Night; I'm Not In The Mood to Bear It" ... 37

Betrayed By Her Own Husband ... 60

"But How Were You Such a Fool as to Let Yourself Be Caught?" Inquired Darrell ... 421

Caught by his Rival ... 325

Colonel Darrell's Fatal Mistake ... 468

Woman, A Wonderful ... 469

Declaration, A Passionate ... 300

Dixon Returned, Bringing a Telegram, Which Sir Ascot Hurriedly Opened ... 156

"Do I Disturb You?" Slade Asks, in a Soft Tender Voice... 181

"Do You Think Bertie Will Escape?" Asked Gertrude, Raising Her Wistful Eyes to the Colonel ... 372

Even as Rex Verreker Looked, a White Figure Emerged Into the Corridor—A White Figure, With Wild Despairing Eyes ... 169

"Father," She Moaned, "Oh, My Dear, Come Away From This Dreadful Water" ... 493

First Love's Dawn ... 277

Flitting, A Moonlight Foiled in The Attempt To Escape ... 409

"From Whom Does this Message Come?" Elsie Asked, Suspiciously ... 612

Georgie Wept and Sobbed, and Clung to Peter Blaine, as if She Was Parting With the Very Light of Life ... 217

Gilbert Vernon's Reception of Georgie ... 457

"Good-bye!" He Said, Hoarsely. "Perhaps the Time May Come When I Shall be Able to Forgive You!" ... 601

"Good Heavens, Eddy!" He Exclaimed, "Here! And at This Time" ... 349

"Great Heavens, Are You Mad, Georgie?" Gilbert Cried, Angry ... 540

"Heaven Shield Thee, My Life! Heaven Save Thee," Delacourt Said ... 13

He Gripped Her Roughly by the Shoulder, and Her Knees Knocked Together as She Recognised George His Guardian Angel ... 373

"How Dare You?" cried the Girl, Almost Panting. "Why Do You Persecute Me Like This; it is Cruel, Cowardly!" ... 157

How Rex Verreker Was Found ... 348

Hubert Could Hardly Believe the Evidence of His Own Senses—The Signature to the Marriage Certificate Was Familiar as His Own ... 105

"I Accuse You, Clarice, Countess of Roubaix, of Being a Thief" ... 180

"I Can Never Be Anything To You Again. I Can Be No Wife To You" ... 205

"I Am So Glad," Says Ethel, Gently, "I Knew All Would Be Well in the End!" ... 133

"I—I Hardly Know How to Begin," She Faltered, Twisting Her Fingers Nervously ... 577

"I Have Come to Say My Last Word. You Will or I Will Tell Your Father the Truth Before To-Morrow Night" ... 173

"I'll Be Brave," in a Harsh Voice; "Only Tell Me, Is He Very Bad?" ... 492

"I'll Go Up To-Morrow, As Sure As I'm Standing Here, and Tell Her Everything," Hissed Mary Todd ... 433

"I'll Never Part With You Now I've Got You Safe, Mrs. Blaine" ... 361

"I Looked Up; Guy Fortescue Stood at My Side—A Strange, Grave Look Upon His Face" ... 445

In the Snare of The Tempter ... 444

"I See That You Have Not Recognized Me, and Are Not Unnaturally Surprised to Encounter Peter Blaine" ... 313

"I See You Are Travelling Alone; Will You Permit Me to Carry These For You?" ... 241

"I Shall Feel Obliged if You Will Explain Yourself, Miss Grey," Observed Lionel, Severely ... 588

"I Think I Have Seen You Before To-Night, Miss Osmond?" The Earl Ventures at Last ... 61

"It's a Bad Business—a Very Bad Business!" said the Ambassador, as he sat Down by the Writing-table ... 324

"It is You, Then, Miss Egerton," He Exclaimed, Coming Down The Bank... 529

"Lady Valerie," Cried Rex Verreker, in Alarm, "Are You Ill?" ... 121

Lilian Staunched the Blood with her Handkerchief, and Called Upon Hugh to Look Up and Speak to Her ... 613

Madeline's Hand Shook So That She Could Hardly Tear Asunder The Envelope of the Telegram, or Read its Contents... 97

"Mademoiselle, Is This Yours?" Asked The Maid, as Her Mistress Came Into The Room ... 49

Miss Fan Almost Snatched The Book out of Peter Blaine's Hand, and Hastily Scribbled Down Georgie's Address ... 385

"Mr. Vanrenan," Defiantly, "You Think So Highly of Auntie Yourself That Gerald Might Well Be Jealous" ... 565

"Oh, Please, Don't Wait For Mamma," Beryl Pleaded, a Look of Disappointment Clouding Her Fair Face ... 229
